

I'LL LOVE YOU ANYWAY

April 2020, London

In times like these we find ourselves unprepared and confused. We've been suddenly stripped of our normality, and naturally we've started exploring its meaning. A hug, a kiss, a walk. Yes, it's true, we give things for granted, but isn't that how the game works? We're drawn to what's far and ignore what's close. Today though, what's right next to us turns out to be everything.

These drawings are a gesture, besides being works, uniting us through an ideal kiss. A gesture that reminds us of the real value of our feelings, gently pushing us to do more. To be more. A gesture for you to share with your loved ones, from me to you.

Thanks Giotto, for all the food for thought.
